Rev. T. W. Williams of the Latter Day Saints church left yesterday for the annual conference. The term of his appointment here has expired, but as his congregation is very anxious to have him returned, and as he is very anxious to return, it is a foregone conclusion that the conference will reappoint him to this work for another term of one year.

Two rather well dressed men attracted attention last evening on Washington avenue by their evident anxiety to get out of town as quickly as possible. Both were running and one was trying to conceal what appeared to be a new overcost under his ulster. Some one shouted "stop thief," and the men increamed their speed and disappeared in the neighborhood of Geise's brewery. Judge McGee yesterday sentenced Lloyd Blackmore, a juvenile chronic thief, to fifteen days in the city jail on a bread and water diet. Blackmore has been in the police court very often of late and has acquired a bad reputa-tion. His father died a few weeks ago and he is without any sort of parental restraint. Since the sentence the police have discovered that Blackmore has been implicated in other thefts than those charged against him at the time of his arrest, and the police judge will review the case again today and most likely decide upon sending the youth to the state reform school at Eldora.

Saunders returned yesterday from Philadelphia, whither he went as a member of Governor Drake's Iowa party to take part in the ceremonies connected with the launching of the big battleship, Iowa. Mr. Saunders is enthus-iastic, not only over the magnificent ship that bears the state's name, but the royal hospitality shown the Hawkeye delegation at the Quaker City. The Iowans owned town for two days, and the Hawkey badge was the passport for special recogni-tion everywhere. The launching was wit-nessed by more than 25,000 people. After the launching the Iowans were banqueted by the Cramps in the moulding loft of their great ship yard. Two thousand guests sat down to a $10,000 banquet. During the day and the evening enough champagne was poured out to almost float the vessel. The lowa people realized, and so did everbody else, that the most magnificent battleship in the world bore the name of the loyal western state, and the enthusiasm was so infectious that every time the name was mentioned, even on the streets, it would be the signal for cheers. There was great strife to secure pieces of the champagne bottle that Miss Drake broke on the bow of the vessel, but the builders were cireful to provide a jewel box for Miss Drake to e the chattered pieces in and carry then

The opening meeting of the convention of the Southwestern Iowa Tcachera' association was held at the Presbyterian church last night. It was teachers' day all day. The morning trains brought them in by the hundred and nearly every town in western and southwestern Iowa is represented by one or more teachers. The early hours of the day were spent in seeking boarding accommodations and the afternoon was given up to visiting the schools of the city. Every visiting teacher wanted to know something of the methods of the teacher in the same grade and line of work in Council Bluffs and as a result all the school rooms of the city were filled with visitors during the afterlarly upon behalf of the superintendent and the teachers of the city schools, welcomed the teachers of the state. The teacher's duty, he said, was the development of the wise, honest and benevolent citizen. The question was how best to do this, and the question was how clear vision and the cultivaanswer was by clear vision and the cultiva- crossing. The box turned completely spended to the address of welcome. He appreciated the words of welcome as coming last night she had not recovered consciousfrom a teacher of Christ. The sentiment of the majority everywhere was on the side of Christ and the right. The words of welcome were not so much to the teachers as individuals, but to the work they were doing. It would be difficult to speak extravagantly of the work of the teachers of the country, not fied and came in from his farm last. They had in their charge the evolution and evening. development of 15,000,000 children, and the value of one life multiplied by 15,000,000 would give an idea of the greatness and importance of the work of the teachers of the

HIS IDEAL NEWSPAPER. Dr. Brookr then entered a lamentation on the fact that the newspapers of the country pay more attention and give more space to pay more attention and give more space to the evils of the country than to the good. A Boston paper which fell into the doctor's hards had eighteen columns of foot ball news, more space, he said, than had been devoted to the schools of the commonwealth that come to it. Each pupil must be dealt in individually. The child, unperverted, is teachable and must be reached from within and cannot be educated by outside influences Dr. Brooks closed with words of encouragement for the teachers of southwestern Iowa. Prof. G. F. W. Patrick of the State University then delivered his lacture on "Child Study and Its Practical Results." Prof.

Patrick briefly reviewed the history of the science of child study and referred specially o the growth of interest in the work within he past two years. Within that time the the past two years. Within that time the subject had been taken up in the meetings of state teachers and was now a subject for tiudy and research everywhere, and was being introduced into the public schools. Child study, he said, was not a fad. It was as old as the history of education, for edu-cators had always studied children. The present acceptance of the term means a science, based on the knowledge of the child The new view is that the child has ideals, rights and laws of his own and the success of education depends upon the extent to which these ideals, rights and laws of children and develop them. The school children and develop them. The school system made out to suit the requirements of the man and all laws of child study are violated in forcing children up to the school, ard required by the schools. It is the school, ard required by the schools. It is the school, not the child, that is kept in view by the school system. No science of education possible without a knowledge of the mind of Special instruction for each individual child is an ideal that cannot be obained so long as each teacher has from thirty to fifty pupila. It is a question too as to whether the present school system is fitted for the development of the typical student. In many respects, according to the progress shown by child study, the present system does not meet the acquirements.

SOME NEEDED REFORMS. Prof. Patrick then took up for discussion one of the needed reforms and changes in the public schools. He referred to the alarm-ing increase of nearsightedness in the public schools. Much of this was due to the use of books with fine print, modeling fine work in the kindergarten and poorly lighted school rooms. He said that he was strong in the faith that children should not enter school work before the completion of the seventh get $5 and $6 for, at the receiver's gale this week.

If pupils were taught to listen and look rather than to do so much book work the result would be more satisfactory in every respect.

The speaker gave a number of tests for the use of teachers in detecting weakness of the eyes or the sense of hearing, and made a number of suggestions as to the necessary steps to be taken by the teacher and parent.

The lecturer went into a decidedly interesting but somewhat technical discussion of the motor ability of children, the error of requiring certain fine motion work when the child nature demands the full, free mo-tion of body or limb. The differences be-tween children of the different sexes at different ages was discussed, and the predic-tion made that the plan of co-education must in the near future be modified, particularly after the pupils reach the age of 11 years. The need of physical development was also discussed and methods for it suggested.

IN CONCLUSION. The speaker closed by stating that a suc essful teacher must know the child, must now the laws of development, must be able to detect and appreciate the signs of fatigue, must understand the methods of detecting defects of sight and hearing, and to know these essentials child study was essential in every school room. It was necessary to pay more attention to the scholar than to the school, and the teacher is to be pitled who cannot learn more from his pupils than he can hope to teach them. can hope to teach then Air Lines from Council Bluffs. A local railroad man has gone to considrable trouble figuring out the distances from Council Bluffs to the chief cities in the United States by direct air-line routes. He prepared the table for the purpose of showing that there are a great many miles of railroad that need not have been built, and to use it as a basis for an argument which he intends to make at a gathering of rall-way magnates in the future, in which he will endeavor to convince them that the time has come when rainbow railroads should built. The figures bring the principal cities much nearer than people are o New York, 1,950 miles; Council Bluffs to Baltimore, 940 miles; to New Orleans, 720 miles; Green Bay, Wis., 506; Chicago, 486; Duluth, 415; St. Louis, 397.

Question of Party Policy Discussed at Length by the Advocates and Opponents of the Liberal Proposition.

DES MOINES, April 2,-(Special Telegram.)-The two days' discussion on the manufactures bill ended in the defeat of the measure by a vote of 22 to 27, all of the Will Resist All Efforts to Control so-called doubtful senators, Alexander, Byers, Sargeant, Penrose and Riggen, voting with the majority. Senator Healey, who was absent, sent word that had he been present he was completed in the year 1859 at Port bundas, Glasgow, Scotland. It is 454 feet in height, and, aside from its great size, is a party would suffer material beautiful the party would suffer material party would suffer material harm in the future.

The discussion on the bill was resumed this morning, Senator Cheshire of Polk speaking in its favor. He said the arguments made yesterday could have been well made against the sale of intoxicating liqu rs, but would not apply with equal force to the pending bill. The sale of these beverages had been legalized by the mulct law, and the pending bill only proposed to authorize the manufacture of that the sale of which is perfectly lawful. If half what the senators from Franklin and Warren sa'd yesterday is true those senators, in order to sistent, should have introduced a bill on the first day of the session to wipe every line of the mulct law from the statute books. Nothing of the kind was done or proposed and no pettions for the repeal of the law have been prezented.

Senator Hotchkiss of Dallas in opposing the bill cited the republican platform of 1893, and argued that the proposed bill would be in direct opposition to that declaration, as no friend of the mescure believed that its enactment would "best promote the interest mitted to and accepted it only as a new an more effective method of enforcing the pro hibitory law and not as a license to violate its provisions. The republican party today stands at the forks of the road. It cannot afford to take one more step in obedienc to the demands of the rum interest, hesitate now is to be lost. Absent or not voting: Healey. Senator Byers introduced a resolution pro-viding for a sifting committee of seven and that no other bills except appropriations be considered except such as may be reported from this committee. The resolution wil lay over till tomorrow, when it will prob-ably be adopted.

The claim of the code commissioners for extra pay for alleged overtime aggregating nearly $3,000 was given little consideration in the committee on appropriations and re ported back for indefinite postponement. The house had under consideration the constitutional amendment proposed by Mr Temple of Clark to give each county one ret resentative in the lower house of the legis lature. Their Society. SIOUX CITY, April 2.- (Special Telegram.)-Because the district court refused to compel the school board to readmit Madison Page, who was recently expelled from school on the ground that he refused to leave the Civics club, a high school society, to which he devoted so much time as to interfere with his work, the club will probably sever its connection with the school, engage clul rooms down town and reorganize an inde-pendent society. Then if the school author-ities continue their claim of authority over it, the youngsters will make a fresh test of the matter in the courts.

Defective Gun Proves Fatal. VILLISCA, Ia., April 2 .- (Special.) -- Avery Pendergraft went hunting Friday, carrying a shotgun so defective that he had to use parlor matches to discharge it. While tinkering with the gun trying to discharge a load, the barrel and stock became discon-nected. The rear end of the barrel came in line with his head just as a shell was dis-charged, at the reaction drove the shell Into his head. Physicians were called his badly broken the brain oozed out. Dr. S. Mosher,

Oh! What a Blessing is a Bicycle!

Aside from the pleasure there is in bicycling, it is the most economic method of transportation that one can have. Who would exchange a free, open-air spin on a wheel for a ride in a stuffy, lumbering street car? All shades and conditions of men and women are now looking into the utility of the bicycle. Don't overlook the Wellington and the Hamilton. They are the best.
